DRESIDENT Kennedy's Corps" is to become a reality, on a pilot basis, much more quickly cipated and the ning to realize that America's new Presi-dent has a youthful energy and verve which results in plans being put rapidly in-to action. The efforts of the 500 young men and women who are expected to enlist in this new kind of army will be followed with in-terest everywhere and with sympathy in many quar-ters, both in the West and in the underdeveloped countries to which they are to offer their services.

It is said that Mr. Kenne dy conceived the idea of a "Peace Corps" of dedicated young people to share the lives of the humble in backward countries after reading the best-selling no-vel "The Ugly American" which shocked the United States with its venomous picture — undoubtedly ex aggerated — of some of its foreign service person nel. The President's feel ing that something would have to be done if freedom were to survive "the modern technique of conest" of the uncommitted at a tes was strengthened when told of the intensive tuition in language and local customs given to young Soviet technicians for the members of the Peace Corps will be to strive for acceptance. One of the reasons why Israelis strive for acceptance. One of the reasons why Israels working on technical assistance in Burma, for example, have been able to implement so smoothly the various development projects on which they are engaged is this very factor of acceptance. They have been accepted by the Burmese people because they themselves accepted with open minds the way of life of the country. This has been revealed strikingly in the series of articles in this newspaper (the last of which is published today) written by an Israeli working in Burma. He and his colleagues have spent months far a way from the cities, working side by side on the edge of the Jungle with the Burmese and have been able to establish with them a rare relationship of comradeabip and equality.

Teachers Meeting | South African Group Plans Eshkol Today

A delegation of the Association of Secondary School Teachers is scheduled to meet with Finance Minister Eah-kol at the latter's office in Tel Aviv at 8.30 this morning. Mr. A. Katz, a member of the delegation told The Jersaniem Post last night that unless Mr. Eahkol makes "concrete" proposals acceptable to the teachers, the strike called for Sunday will stand.

reopensas acceptable to the freachers, the strike called for Sunday will stand.

The spokesman of the Ministry of Education and Culture yesterday denied that Mr. Ami Assaf. Deputy Minister of Education, had expressed opposition to Mr. Eban's proposals in connection with changes in the present link between the Salaries of elementary and secondary school teachers, as reported in The Jerusalem Post on Thursday. The spokesman asid "there are no differences between the Minister and his Deputy in respect to this question." to give them their change.

Eban Off to U.S.

LYDDA AIRPORT — The Minister of Education, Mr. Abba Eban, yesterday left for the U.S. by T.W.A., accompanied by his wife, for a week's visit during which he will launch the U.J.A. drive and take part in the Bonds campaign.

He hoped that the teachers would not interrupt the school year in his absence and that he would find everything running smoothly on his return. Over 1.200 police were mo-bilized to keep order and di-rect the extremely extended traffic detours. Under the development scheme, one-family and semi-detached houses will be built, and where the slopes are steep enough, two storey houses.

Plans have yet to be ap-proved by the authorities, though work on the first homes is expected to start this summer.

The only item still missing is a name, and a public competition is expected to fill this gap, Mr. Clive-Smith said.

HAIFA — Israel has joined the ranks of petroleum products exporters.

In 1960, the United Petroleum Export Company marketed 42.00 tons of fuel ed. worth $900.000 in Beigium and Western Germany and 25.000 tons of Bitumen in Turkey and Cyprus for a similar amount. The Company was established in December 1959.

In the first two months of this year exports ran to $1.2m, with Sierra Leone added to the list of customers.

LYDDA AIRPORT — The Head of the Reparations Mission in Cologne. Dr. Felix Shinnar, yesterday refuted rumours that talks were being held with West Germany with the aim of extending the term of the Reparations Aggement.

These rumours are completely unfounded, and are directly unfounded, and are directly unfounded interested in straining relations between West Germany and Israel." Dr. Shinnar told Ism.!

He made the statement prior to his departure by El Al to Zurich on his way to Germany to place Reparations orders for 1961/62. He said that both the type of purchases and their scope were the same as last year's. This will be the tenth year of the Reparations Agreement. Israel has another D.M.600 million ($150m.) of Reparations money at her disposal over the next five years.

MARGINAL COMMENT

IT'S GOOD TO BE BACK

By David Courtney

TS good to be back: good because of I familiar things, not because of change. But everyone says: "Do you notice a big change?" Of course I do. Israel is the kind of country that changes from day to day, and quite a few days have gone by since last I was here.

In that time new suburbs have aprung up, new villages been laid down, and ip, new villages been laid down, and, from all accounts, a spectacular atomic reactor raised near a town that wasn't there the last time I passed that way. In Tel Aviv and Jerusaiem two apartment houses have been made to grow where there was only one before, the Tel Aviv variety looking like monumental influences and the Jerusaiem variety bird-cages and the Jerusalem variety like—well, like apartment houses that have scorned such nonsense as design.

the changes have been remarkable: supermarkets if you please; and new spinning mills on the western edge of Jerusalem; and the Hebrew University grown big enough to accommodate most of the tourists dumped on to its Campus day after day. There are other char too, perhaps more significant. But needs a little more time to catch up with them; and besides, as I said at the beginning, one comes back to a place because of what one remembers rather than because of what may be new and surprising.

I would have listed the weather as one of the significant changes except that everyone tells me it is nothing new. For my part, in all the time I lived in this country never before did the winds chill me so bitterly or the rains wet me so consistently. That would not matter so much if only everyone I meet would not grin happily at each new downpour; and if I had not been an object of envy among my London friends because I was "following the sun!"

BUT what really makes one feel at home again, apart from the warm and welcoming hospitality of the people, are the old familiar ways. For example, all this talk about Democracy and what all this talk about Democracy and what; it means (as if anyone really knows!); Mr. Ben-Gurion's Democracy; Mr. La-von's Democracy; this group of Pro-fessors' Democracy and that group of Professors Democracy; and even the studenta version of it. What could be more characteristic of Israel, or more to everyone's grudge and everyone's social or political affiliations? Even "The Affair" itself, for all its mys-Even "The Affair" itself; for all its mys-tic incoherences, seems the kind of thing one has a right to expect on one's re-turn to Israel. And surely something like it has been teasing Jewish political life ever since that vigorous-minded, indivi-dualistic and cantankerous people per-suaded God that they should be chosen above all other peoples. Obviously, as we have seen lately, some Israelis feel more chosen than others.

A NYWAY, crisis of one kind or an-A other is part and parcel of the vivid growth of this country and "The Affair" belongs as surely as the Negev atom bomb scare or Mr. Ben-Gurion's controversial interpretation of Biblical history or any other incident from the daily drama of conflict and development that keeps the citizen of Israel, and the visito to Israel, from getting bored.

Admittedly the familiar drama ha reached new and unfamiliar level with the fetching of Adolf Elchmann to this country and the preparations for his trial Israel gets into the rest of the world's line of vision pretty often but this time the range has been extended and the focus sharpened. Coming back to this country, one is aware of an un-accustomed tension, an unusual solem nity, which has little enough to do, think, with the person of Elchmann or even with the awful indictment he musanswer. One has the feeling that many a ghoat has begun to stir, which had been resting between the layers of the Israel years but now are flinging those years aside as they come awake, to take their unseen places in the witness box.

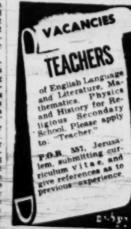

ALL in all, then, a strange, unusual A country this; and yet a good, gentle country to come back to. And what is more, let the dramatics of "The Affair" what they will, and the Beit Ha'am become a solemn theatre with all the world's eyes upon its stage. Israel has become a mature country. The evidence become a mature country. The evidence of this is in the fact that all the best of this is in the fact that all the best people seem to have learned, now to spend their idle hours hitting a little white ball and following it about for miles and miles and miles. You cannot talk politics playing golf.

But it really is good to be back.

ROCK OF ISRAEL

ISRAEL'S Deciaration of Independence concludes with a pious reference which is translated into English as "WITH TRUST IN THE ROCK OF ISRAEL." The country's religious citizens are by no means satisfied that this is an adequate reference to the God whom they worship, while the extreme left-wing probably suspects that it involves a sip of the "opiate of the people." Similarly, the religious complain that Israel's Knesset is not opened with a prayer, as is the American Congress. Generally they feel that the People of the Book are in danger of forgetting Jerusalem by the waters of the Yarkon. On the other hand their extreme opponents watch them jealously lest they should attempt to proselytize free-thinking Jews. Between these two extreme groups are any number of citizens who are dissatisfied with the relationship between State and Synagogue, complaining on the one hand that the religious interfere too much in secular affairs and that existing synagogues offer them no spiritual haven.

EDUCATION BY TRIAL

THOSE of Israel's teachers who desire prestige and social standing within their wilder environment as well as in the class-room should work in a development town. There, they are accorded respect and considered leaders of opinion. They fulfil cultural and social functions which are undertaken in long-developed communities by other types of workers.

This role of the teacher in the development town is doubtless due to a large extent to tradition. Oriental dewish society greatly appreciates learning. In Israel the teacher provides not only knowledge but he is also the gould to the new ways of the country, holding the keys to technique and possessing the culture of the veteran population.

claim to special treatment if the coalition was to be maintained. In 1936 Dizengoff grew impatient and ran on his own ticket: the citizens showed their confidence in him by returning him and two other candidates from his list; but the largest faction in the Council was still the Labour bloc, and Dizengoff both understood the respective a coalition with a bare majority. Only a dispassionate historian of some distant future will be able to tell how many opportunities to speed the development of Tel Aviv were lost by party bickering.

It was a political axiom in the late 19th century that you would not been throwing bombs at the age 40 if you had not been throwing bombs at the age 40 if you had not been throwing bombs at the age 40 if you had not been throwing bombs at the age 40 if you had not been throwing bombs at the age 40 if you had not been throwing bombs at the age 40 if you had not been throwing bombs at the age 40 if you had not been throwing bombs at the age 40 if you had not been throwing bombs at the age 40 if you had not been throwing bombs at the age at 18. The plot was about a plump girl well-beloved by a poor boy, but ahe loved a rich man, or something like that. She sang a variation of "Ichikedana" and the two rivals engaged in a duel. I felt hungry.

Where may I sit down?"

I asked a waitress leaning against the wall tensely watching the fateful duel.

A FEW steps from the Zion Hotel in Haifa I found a crowd milling in frent of a small restaurant, necks craning to see what was going on inside. My journalistic curiosity aroused, I elbowed my way in.

If I had expected some violent blood-curdling spectacle, I was in for a disappointment. The patrons were sitting at tables, perfectly decorously, and there was not even a little fist-fight in sight I asked a woman who stood motionless behind the counter what was the reason for the mob outside.

"Beirut" the woman axplained laconicelly, without looking my way, "R's just started."

Following her glance, up in a corpus of the mode outside.

The rich man challenged him to a due! The swords were fisahing in the bright sunahine.

Excuse me" — I turned in the general direction of my neighbour at table, "What can one eat here?"

"Who are you?" — he shot back. For a while it looked as if the poor boy had had it, but at the last moment he got out of his predicament.

"I'm a customer and I am sitting next to you" — replied. "What does one are there?"

The poor guy climbed in through Fatso's window. The hapless girl was now imprisoned in the rich man's castle. Together they sang a song. It was obvious that a duel could no longer be averted.

"Minestrone, please" — I repeated my order, whereupon the waiter felt my face, that he might remember my features. Afterwards he left his head turned tortuously Somewhat later I heard a lady screaming that the might remember my features. Afterwards he left his head turned tortuously Somewhat later I heard a lady screaming that the minestrone had spilled down her neck.

"This is the third time tonight," she screeched but her neighbours shushed her angelly. The poor guy had the tycoon at the point of his diagger and the girl's fatewas hanging on a thread Just as the rebel cavalry was encircling the castle. I felt the waiter's hand caressing my face.

"Set on Edge" is an important first novel. Its author has shown herself particularity well-equipped. She has the makings of a writer of high comedy and at the same time is endowed with a strong sense of social observation. It remains to be seen whether she becomes a significant new voice in Anglo-Jewish literature, or whether in writing this book she has purged herself of her Jewish past and like so many of her KOL Yisrael is about to celebrate the 25th anniversary of broadcasting in this country with a number of suitable commemorative programmes. The first harbinger was Sunday's Youth Feature in Yosi Goddard's series "Knapaack on your Back". It was impossible to find any connection between the title of the series and the five interviews about Kol Yisrael which constituted the broadcast—but the programme was worthwhile, natural and more adult than many of the so-called adult broadcasts.

"When the programme was worthwhile in the secret of the working in 'roadcasting' was the basic question. Several answers were suggested. Yoram Ronen thought radio was like a drug. 'You're down're building was like a drug: "You're do-ling something—you're building something" he opined. "If I changed my job I'd miss radio." Miriam Rothschild-head of the record library, ad-ded another important ele-ment—"there is continual excitement—it could be cal-led a constant war of nerves-and she commented; "Work in the radio is not for ner-yous people."

was the "confession" of Shmu-el Almog, Kol Yisrael's diplo-matic and political correspon-dent. Mr. Almog is an extremeways mature and stimulating. He started by saying that he had left the radio on a couple of occasions, but each time had been drawn back, in particular because he was attracted by "the little element of creativity". He went on to asy: "I also like to say what I think. But this has its drawbacks. In a national radio, you have to say what everyone wants, for example, during the Lavon affair, I had to say that everyone was hoping for a settlement and there was an element of right on both sides and this was difficult for me, as a person with my own views, to put over." One can sympathize with a broadcaster
